Bradford / Rose Camp # 1638

August 2007

Volume 15, Issue 8

There is no doubt that many things have been gained in the interval that has passed since the war. The life expectancy is longer, most infants survive and technology abounds. It has been said that air conditioning has changed the South more than the war. However, not all has been gain. Of the many things which characterize our ancestors, self reliance surely rates near the top. Americans, especially Southerners, possessed a wide variety of the skills needed to live with some degree of civilization. Small isolated communities functioned quite well. If the Confederate soldier had not been self reliant, he would never have survived. Look around and tell me that this quality is not in short supply in today's world.

Forrest Picnic 2007

Our Annual Forrest Picnic was great as usual. We have included a few photos. We always have a great time together, and when you add good southern cooking...You can't get any better than that.

H. K. Joined us again this year. As usual, he led us in a round of Dixie and had Carrie join in. She is usually willing to give a song. For everyone's information, H. K. had his flag a flying high.

Lois Miller said she needed a broom then next time we worked at the Longstreet House. One of our fine Southern Gentlemen suggested that she use the one she rode in on and gave her a hat to match. Oh, but we do have fun.
