November 2003

Volume 11, Issue 12

Here we are at Thanksgiving already. It's hard to believe that another year is almost gone. While, as a Christian, I think it is a fine thing to have a special day to give thanks, I do have one bone to pick with the event. The pilgrim theme of the season seems to aggravate another of the common history misconceptions; that Plymouth Massachusetts was the first European settlement in this country. Many people believe this, just ask them! Any connection to the preponderance of textbooks printed in the northeast? Let us take every opportunity to remind them about the EARLIER settlement at Jamestown Virginia.

Good Ole Tennessee Boys

The following articles were in the Confederate Veteran Magazine. These can be found on the Internet at <http://www.tngenweb.org/civilwar/confvet/rollcall/>

MAJOR JAMES T. HUFF

An influential and widely beloved citizen, died at Newport, Tenn., on Sept. 24, 1919, at the age of fourscore years. He was born near Del Rio, Tenn., June 3, 1839 and there received his early education, later going to Carson and Newman College, where he was in school when the War Between The States came on. He enlisted and served as a private until the summer of 1862, when a company was organized near his home of which he was elected captain. The company was attached to the 6th Battalion, which later with certain additions, became the 60th N.C. Regiment. He was promoted to the office of major in Dec., 1863 and as such remained with his regiment to the close of the war. He made a brave and faithful soldier, enduring much hard service and taking part in many hard-fought battles.

After the war Maj. HUFF returned to his home and began work on the farm. He was successful and built up one of the large estates of Cocke County. In Aug. 1869, he was married to MISS JANE STOKELY, who died some years ago.

Maj. HUFF joined the Bapt. church in early childhood and remained a consistent member until his death.

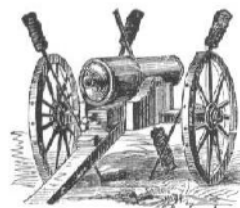

He was laid to rest in the family burying ground near Bridgeport, near the rushing waters of the French Broad River and amid the encircling mountains of his native section.

JAMES HENRY McCLISTER

Confederate Veteran 1930

One of the oldest and best known residents of this section, was born April 22, 1844 in Jefferson [now Hamblen County], Tenn. He was the eldest son of DAVIS and MARIA HELM McCLISTER. The family originally came from Ireland.

When 17 years old he began for himself, his work being interrupted by the war. When a lad of 18 years he enlisted in Company I, 2nd Tennessee Cavalry, C.S.A., under Capt. N.C. LANGFORD and COL. HENRY M. ASHBY. This regiment was one of the most efficient cavalry regiments in the army. Young McCLISTER participated in the battles of Perryville, Murfreesboro, Chickamauga and was with WHEELER during the Atlanta Campaign and surrendered with JOHNSTON'S army in North Carolina. He was paroled at Charlotte, N.C. and always kept his parole, together with a Mexican dollar, part of his last pay roll.

After the war he took a great interest in Confederate veterans organizations and for several years was Secretary of East Tennessee Confederate Veterans Association.

At the beginning of this year there were nine surviving veterans in this county. Four have since joined their comrades on the other side. The thin gray line has become a mere shadow.

He was married, in 1874 to MISS MAGGIE FORD, a daughter of P.W. FORD, of Petersburg, Va. Seven children blessed this union of whom three daughters and three sons survive him.

SAMUEL R. CARDEN

Samluel R. Carden was born at Rogersville, Tenn. March 26, 1840 and died near Jefferson City, Tenn. Nov. 24, 1914. He enlisted at Mossy Creek [now Jefferson City], Tenn., May 26, 1861, as a private in the "Peck Light Dragoons", which became Co E, 3rd Battalion of Tennessee Cavalry and in May, 1862 it became Co. I, 2nd Reg. Tenn Cavalry. of which HENRY M. ASHBY was the colonel and served in the same company until the surrender of the Army of Tenn. near Greensboro, N.C. April 26, 1865 when he returned home.

SAM CARDEN'S prominent characteristic was faithfulness to duty as he saw it, alike as a citizen, a soldier and a Christian, and an outgrowth of this was absolute loyalty in his friendships. He united with the Presbyterian church at Mossy Creek, Tenn. Oct. 27, 1867 and adorned his profession by a Godly walk and conversation.

FRANK A. MOSES
Confederate Veteran
August 1918

Frank A. Moses, who died at the Lincoln Memorial hospital, in Knoxville, Tenn., on May 8, 1918, was one of the best known of Confederate veterans in the State of Tennessee. As a member of the State Board of Pensions since 1891 and it's chief examiner, he had been instrumental in adjusting the questions of pensions for thousands of Tennessee Confederate veterans, and during this more than 25 years he had given his time and thought to the matter of relieving his Confederate comrades and their widows.

Comrade MOSES was a soldier, as a member of Company D, 3d Tennessee Regiment, and was made ensign of his regiment. He served with bravery and distinction, taking part in many engagements. He was wounded in the battle of Drewry's Bluff. He also saw service with General Longstreet in East Tennessee. After recovering from his wound in May, 1864, he rejoined the command in October.

Comrade MOSES served as clerk in the Tennessee House of Representatives in 1875 ...

His death occurred after a long illness, at the age of 73 years.

ANDERSON
Confederate Veteran
July 1922

DR. ANDREW LEWIS ANDERSON, aged 93 years, died at the home of his step-daughter, MRS. H.T. PATTON, at Rockwood, Tenn., on May 10, 1922. He was a veteran of the Mexican War and of the War Between the States.

His father, Col. Pierce B. ANDERSON, was killed at the battle of Stone Mountain early in the struggle.

DR. ANDERSON was a nephew of Gov. Campbell of Tennessee and a grandnephew of Meriwether Clark of the Lewis and Clark Expedition, the Lewis is his name being a tribute to that expedition. His grandfather was JOSEPH ANDERSON, one of the first U.S. Senators from Tenn. and a brother, GEORGE B. ANDERSON, was for many years Congressman from Missouri.

He graduated from the old Franklin College near Nashville and at the Univ. of Michigan. He served as surgeon during the War Between the States.

He was married to MRS. AMANDA BROWN, widow of Franklin Brown and he was buried in the Brown cemetery at Post Oak Springs, the last of the honored name, which he so worthily bore.

His mother was ANNA MADISON LUKE, through whom he was connected with several prominent Tennessee and Kentucky families.
